Call for Proposals on the Theme of the 50th Anniversary of the RSA

To celebrate the 50th anniversary of the RSA, we are reserving a number of panel and paper slots for scholarly work thematically appropriate to the anniversary.

These themes include:

- The Past: Panels and papers looking back at scholarship and ideas since the founding of RSA, and seeing what they can teach us about the present.
- The Present: Panels and papers scanning the current landscape of rhetorical scholarship for open roads, dead ends and important destinations.
- The Future: Panels and papers exploring where rhetorical scholarship can go, may go or ... must go.
- The Generations: Panels featuring a junior and a senior scholar discussing a major development in rhetorical studies (preferably, with the junior scholar inviting the senior scholar)
- The Missing: Panels on unstudied, understudied, or misunderstood aspects of the discipline
- The Community: Panels and papers addressing RSA's diversity (or lack thereof), including our international profile.

Proposals Due: July 15, 2017, 11:59 PM
